Mr. Joseph Savoldi, Jr.
Harbert, Michigan

Dear Joe:

This is just a word of caution to warn you not to mention your connection with our outfit. I know this is unnecessary but it pays to be overcareful, not only for ourselves but for your own good.

You realize, of course, that when we call you down here that you should just drop out of your present picture quietly and with no publicity. If necessary you could explain to your friends that you have been called to Washington by the War Department for some sort of consultation.

When you are commissioned naturally it will be public knowledge, but as far as the public is concerned you will have just another Army job in Washington.

I hope you made connections with the morning plane and had a good flight home.

We will be getting in touch with you in the near future. See you soon.

Very truly yours,

E. M. Burke
